The Flintco Companies, Inc. Names Martin Division President

Austin, TX. – The Flintco Companies Inc., one of the largest commercial construction companies in the nation, has appointed John Martin to the position of division president. In this role, Martin is responsible for working with the company’s executive management team to develop and implement company-wide direction and growth strategies. He will also continue to oversee management for Flintco’s Texas operations based in Austin, Texas.

“John was the driving force in our addition of a Flintco office in Austin,” said Tom Maxwell, CEO of The Flintco Companies. “His extensive experience in the construction industry and his leadership will be a great asset to our companywide senior management team.”

Under Martin’s direction, the Austin Flintco office has won numerous local and national awards for construction excellence and safety from the Associated Builders and Contractors and the Associated General Contractors. The office has also been recognized as one of the top ten ‘Best Companies to Work For’ in Texas.

Among the many client relationships Martin has developed is becoming key provider of construction services for the University of Texas System.

Martin is certified through the Design-Build Institute of America (DBIA). He also serves on that organization’s executive board of the five-state Southwest DBIA Chapter and served as chapter president from 2004 to 2007. Martin also serves on the Oklahoma State University Construction Management Advisory Board and was its vice president from 2002 to 2004. Other affiliations include the Texas A&M University Construction Industry Council, California Center for Construction Education Advisory Board and the ACE Mentoring Austin Chapter, serving as chair in 2005-2006.

Martin graduated from Oklahoma State University in 1986 with a bachelors of science degree in building construction.
